STOCKHOLM, April 8.

PREPARATIONS for war are making in all parts of the kingdom. One company has offered 66 tons of gold for the war. The object is to counteract the triple alliance of England, Auſtria and Ruſſia; and to divert the empreſs from her meditated attacks on the Turks. Troops are marching to Finland, and all the forces of the ſtate, land and naval, are ordered to be in readineſs.

PARIS, April 24.

The Council of Five Hundred has voted a further ſupply to the war miniſter of two hundred millions.

April 25. The utmoſt tranquility prevails in this capital. The promiſſory notes or mandats are in conſiderable circulation; and on this account the tradeſmen ſell for aſſignats only. They refuſe to fix the price in ſpecie, for fear they ſhould have mandats forced on them inſtead of hard caſh.

Our letters from Britanny ſtate, that ſuch has been the effect there of the capture of Charette, that two men, armed with ſticks only might go ſafely from Fontenay to Nantes. There was no other employ for the ſoldiers except to apprehend the emigrants, almoſt all of them diſguiſed as labourers.

(From the CENSEUR DES JOURNAUX.)

The obſtinacy manifeſted by the Engliſh in continuing the war, and deſtroying, unfortunately, all the hopes we had entertained of a ſpeedy peace, reveals to us the ſecret of that monſtrous triple alliance, the ambitious projects of which are the diſmemberment of France and the partition of Europe.

After having exhauſted all the means dictated by honor and humanity to obtain a peace, what ought at preſent to be the conduct of the French government? It ought to refer to the cannon the deciſion of its diſpute; it ought to electrify every heart: it ought to employ in this campaign all that warmth and energy which are neceſſary to render it deciſive.

It ought to ſay as Montcalm whilſt defending Quebec, "Rather let us bury ourſelves under the ruins of the republic, than deliver ourſelves up, tied hand foot, to the mercy of thoſe barbarous iſlanders." It ought to recal to the recollection of every Frenchman this trait of hiſtory.

M. De Voltaire, in the year 1788, being one day at the houſe of Madame La Marechale de Luxembourg, the converſation turned on the war, the calamities of which ſhe very much lamented, and wiſhed that the French and Engliſh underſtood ſufficiently their own intereſt, and thoſe of humanity, ſpeedily to terminate it by a good treaty of peace.

"Madame," ſaid the old man, taking up the ſword of Marechal De Broglio, who was preſent, "this is the pen with which that treaty muſt be ſigned." This muſt be one language—War againſt the Engliſh. Since they will have war, let thoſe words reſound from one end of the republic to the other. Let every friend of the country repeat them with enthuſiaſm—War againſt the Engliſh. Seeing with what animoſity they oppoſe us, I could wiſh to inſtil into every heart the hatred with which that nation inſpires us.

I wiſh it were poſſible immediately to land an army in England, and at the head of an hundred thouſand warriors dictate the terms of peace in the cabinet of St. James's. I could with that Europe, better acquainted with its true intereſt, and roused by its own dangers, more even than by ours, would drive all the Engliſh from the continent; compel them to return to their own country, and confine their power to their own iſland.

But what can we effect by our efforts? How is it poſſible that our feeble voice can awaken an inert maſs, benumbed by fear, or lulled to ſleep in the lap of pleaſure?

If the recent example of Poland, if the ſucceſſive uſurpations of Gibraltar, of the Eaſt Indies, of Ceylon, of the Cape of Good Hope and of Batavia, have had no effect on the cabinets of Pruſſia, of Spain, of Sweden and of Denmark, what have we to hope from our complaints and our proph-cies? The fate of thoſe of Caſſandra.—Notwithſtanding however, the want of encouragement experienced by the oppoſition party, notwithſtanding the ſilence of Mr. Fox; the ſpeech of the eloquent Mr. Grey, on a late occaſion in the houſe of commons, in which he maintained thoſe moral and political principles, which, if the miniſters had not been loſt to all ſhame, muſt have made them bluſh, was heard with the greateſt pleaſure.

To facilitate the communication of the oppoſite banks of the Rhine, two new bridges of boats have been thrown over it in the neighbourhood of Duſſeldorf and Eyſerweert. The army of the right commanded by General Lefebre, is at preſent 40,000 ſtrong, and it will in a few days amount to 50,000 effective men.

WINCHESTER, July 1.

CURIOUS PHENOMENA.

Friday evening laſt arrived in this town Henry Moſs, aged 47 years, born a free negro in one of the lower counties of this ſtate, but is now as fair as any white man, except a few black ſpots on his face, hands and feet. The wool on his head is ſhedding, and where it diſappeared hair ſupplies the place thereof—and on every other part of his body, where wool generally appears on the ſable race, their is now hair. This wonderfull change began to take place about four years ſince, and firſt appeared at the root of his finger nails.—He carries certificates with him to prove his having been born black, how long he continued in that ſtate, when the change commenced, how it progreſſed, &c. and ſome gentlemen of this town and neighbourhood, who want thro' curioſity to ſee him, were convinced that he is the ſame Henry Moſs that belonged to the Virginia line during the late war, that he was at that time as black as any negro, and that he officiated as a waiter to Col. Nevill. We think it neceſſary to add, that his father was a real black, and his mother a dark mulatto.

During his reſidence here, which was from the evening of Friday the 24th ult. until Tueſday morning laſt, he was viſited by ſome hundreds of people, who could not refrain from expreſſing their ſurprize and aſtoniſhment at the wonderful change which the Almighty Hand of Omnipotence has wrought in him.

The generality of perſons who went to ſee him made him a ſmall preſent.

He is now on his way to Philadelphia.

PHILADELPHIA, June 29.

Extract of a letter from Caymites, dated June 7th received by the brig Nymph, Captain Sullivan, arrived at the fort.

"The brigands have adopted a new mode of warfare, which from its deſtructive conſequences on our part, bids fair to be ſucceſsful on theirs. This is, to penetrate to our inhabitations avoiding the great roads, & bye paths and conſequently all our formidable poſts & camps, & thus dash in among us; when lulled in ſecurity we are in the arms of ſleep, & when alas! that ſleep is our death. Several inhabitants in their beds have been murdered, their houſes robbed, and their ſtrong healthy negroes driven away; ſo recently as three days ſince, a gentleman whoſe cuſtom it was to ſleep late, was murdered at table, by a bayonet plunged into his breaſt, and what is wonderful, his wife and infant, juſt returned from Baltimore, eſcaped in the woods. We are in continual alarm; at preſent there are parties out every day; at night the Planters rendezvous at one place, to repoſe."

The Charleſton "State Gazette" of [illegible] 18, contains the following:

"By the late arrivals we learn, that drought had prevailed in the iſland of Jamaica for ſix months paſt; ſome ſhowers had fallen, but they did not [illegible] ſufficient moiſture to revive the herbage, which was effectually deſtroyed as if it had been burnt by fire; the ſheep and cattle in the neighbourhood of Kingſton, ſupported by graſs brought at a great

…ees from the mountains; the crops of …nes owing to this circumstance, to all …pearance, would be very unproductive. …dian corn and other grain from these …tes was in demand."

Arrived here the Brig Mary, Capt. Kean …m Batavia, in 119 days, who informs, …t the British have given up every idea …going against that place, and that the …tavians have put the place in the most …midable situation of defence.

FOR THE PITTSBURGH GAZETTE.

Mr. Scull,

A Political Free Thinker of Westmore-…land county, in your last, makes an …knowledgment which I do not much like: …is "that he did not sign any of the pe-…tions sent down from this country, in fa-…ur of carrying into effect the treaty with …eat Britain; because, in his opinion, it …s the duty of the inhabitants of the West-…n Country to make little noise about the …ers of government on the present occa-…n." Why so? were they not interested …the question, not only as a part of the …neral government; but locally, had they …t a peculiar interest, from their situation …th regard to the stipulations of the treaty? …d they not owe it to the public, to say …at they thought of it, so far as respected …emselves? Had they not a right? Have …y become disfranchised?

The Free Thinker, perhaps means, that …er having run wrong in the affair of the …surrection, we ought to have the decency …be silent for a while; that it does not …me with a good grace from us to speak …. I should expect this from the petit …itres of Philadelphia? but not from an …dividual amongst ourselves. It is true …e reputation of the country had been …ded by the momentary phrenzy of a few …e commission of the outrages, and the …iunty of more in refusing the submission; …t that there was an understanding in the …ple that burst out as soon as it could …w itself, and supported the government …preventing an opposition by arms, and …ciliating the people to the law. If the …e Thinker was one of those that oppose l …submission, and whom I take to be the …t criminals, doubtless it may not be …e him to say much. But let him per-…t other people to express themselves.— …e are not all in that predicament. The ex-…e law was an unequal law, and of bad …e every where; but because the incon-…nience of the people opposed that beyond …l boundaries, must the intelligent and …moderate upon all other questions, ever …d their tongues?

…e Free Thinker is "pleased with the …duct of our immediate representatives:" …e not they made a noise? What right …e they, more than we? Cannot the con-…ent speak as well as the representative? …atin at least made a great noise; it has …en said that he had turned the Congress …m a conventicle, and that he was …er satisfied but when he was listening to …s own vociferations. If these men from …e country of insurrection, could with de-…cy talk so loud abroad, why might not …e lift our voice at home? I could wish …r correspondent to think correctly, as …ll as, freely.

…s to the affair of Findley's trunk, it was …t a mortal sin; nor yet a peccadillo; but …e great fault. I will venture to say his …ds could have wished him in his trunk, …d carried out as his last trunk, to be com-…ted in some cemetery where he would …er more be heard of. Could he not …ve sent his key by a friend, to have the …nk locked? Was he afraid there would …e French gold seen in it? I do not believe …re was any; but merely articles for his …e, as he himself says: Of what then …e he afraid? As to the "blowing up …e trunk into a bubble as large as a moun-…n," it is a good figure, and the circum-…nce may be amplified for the purpose of …planting him in the good opinion of the …ple; but still it is not the motive, but …e reason that supports the animadversion.

Another writer in your paper of the same date, has indulged a few strictures on Find-…ley's history, lately published, which his-…tory I have not read, and therefore can say …nothing about it. But I say that this wri-…ter, whoever he may be, is not of the higher …order of critics, when he talks of evincing …error by the force of blows. It favours …more of driving race horses, than of read-…ing books. Any human may use a cudgel …and against a man of merit and refinement, …and it argues a mind naturally low, or of …low education, to have the idea, or to use …the language. But if Gen. White should …think himself aggrieved, and talk of a cane, …I engage to furnish Findley with an anec-…dote that will disarm him of his cane, and …of which anecdote, I will venture to say, …Findley has had no knowledge, and which …he has not inserted in his history.

The Pumpkin and Paddy

A certain Paddy, newly transported into this country, passed by where a farmer was gathering Pumpkins. By my shoul & what do you call them, says Paddy—Mares eggs, says the farmer. And by St. Patrick, and won't you sell me one of them? for I wish to get in a way of raising my own horses, for my poor old father straightened the hemp for nothing but taking one without liberty—Yes, yes; for a quarter of a dollar you may take one. So Paddy takes it and on he goes—and in descending a hill he by chance let the pumpkin fall, & it took a direction down the hill towards a bunch of bushes, and Mr. Paddy in full speed after it. The Pumpkin struck a stump & split open: a rabbit which lay a sleep under the bushes, started up, almost frightened to death, and Paddy after it, yelling— stop that cault! stop that cault! stop that cault!

WHEREAS James Brady, Sheriff of Westmoreland county, hath advertised a Tract of Land for sale on the 21st instant at Greensburgh, now in my possession, containing 183 and 18 perches, said to be the property of George Croghan, deceased, in consequence of which I publish my title to the said Land, viz. I have had a legal possession thirty four years, an officer's permission commanding at Pittsburgh for the settlement, a sheriff's deed acknowledged before the court of Westmoreland; and a patent from the Commonwealth of Pennsylvania nine years since. Should any person be so unwary as to purchase after this notice, they will purchase a law suit with it. I am informed by the first counsel in the state that the title is in me.

L A N D S

To be LET or SOLD to SETTLERS only;

THREE Thousand Three Hundred acres on Wickwares and Three Forks creeks, five miles each from the falls of the main branch of the river Monongahela, about 10 or 15 miles south of Morgan Town, Monongalia county, Virginia, is offered on improving leases and for sale in tracts suitable to the inclination of settlers only. These lands, like all others on the waters of the Monongahela, are rich soil and rough or broken. Industrious people are invited to view the lands, and make proposals in writing as may best suit their convenience. Persons inclining to view these lands will apply to Mr. EDWARD HAYMOND adjoining the southern line of the same, or to the subscriber at Brownsville, Fayette county, Pennsylvania, either of whom will shew these lands and receive proposals. The subscriber's title is clear; he will be accommodating in the terms of lease and sale, and in the mode and time of payments—He proposes to erect a Grist and Saw Mills to accommodate the settlers, and to lay off a town and Out Lots on said lands, near the mills, and where a new cut road through these lands leads from Clarksburgh to the great state road at Dunkard Bottom, on Cheat river—these Lots he wishes to let out to industrious Mechanics on moderate ground rent forever, but redeemable at the desire of the lessee on paying a composition. The subscriber forbears recommending these lands, confiding that those who want will view the same, and a choice which will be given to the first applicants in order as they apply, are sufficient inducements, and he positively will give the best terms to the first settlers.

OFFICIAL PAPERS.

From L'ECLAIR, May 9.

A letter from Buonparte, dated Cherasc 27 April, mentions, That the enemy, after the last battle in Italy, passed the Sture, and took possession between Coni and Ceraico: The French crossed Ellera; and made new bridges across the Piso, and soon after entered the town of Bene.

After a short action, the enemy evacuated Fossano and the French entered. The enemy continued their retreat to Avignon, to cover Turin, the capital of Sardinia, which latter place was then within nine leagues of the French head quarters.

The Italian commander wrote to the French General, that as he understood the king of Sardinia had sent Plenipo's to negociate a peace, he wished a suspension of arms, to prevent the useless effusion of blood.

The French General replied, that he believed the Republique would grant the Sardians an honorable peace; but he could not agree to an armistice, except two of the three fortresses of Coni, Alessandria, and Tortona, were given up.

Colli, the Sardinia General, in the name of the king, consented to surrender Coni and Tortona to the French to secure a suspension of hostilities, which accordingly took place.

COMMOTIONS IN CORSICA.

17 Florael, May 6.

The news that we have received from Corsica, by the way of Leghorn and Genoa agrees in saying, that an insurrection had broke out in that island, and that the tri-coloured flag is displayed in many places. The inhabitants of many cantons have taken part in it. Those of Burgoyne not wishing to pay taxes, the governor sent 400 militia to force them. As soon as they arrived, about 3000 peasants assembled, surrounded, disarmed, and sent them back, retaining only three principal officers whom they shot. After this act of insurrection, the peasants who have at their head a deputy of the parliament named Tavera, blocked up the roads by which they could penetrate into their cantons. We are assured that many other cantons have followed the example of those of Burgoyne, and that the interior of Corsica has risen. It is said the inhabitants of Nebbo have formed a camp, that they have intercepted the grain sent to other towns, and that they have an understanding with the inhabitants of St. Florenzo, who are said to be in a state of insurrection.

Boston Thursday, (P. M.) June 30.

In addition to the truly important news detailed in this Extra Chronicle, we can mention, on the authority of Paris accounts, that the King of Sardinia had quitted Piedmont, and gone to Venice—That a member of the Senate of Hamburgh, had arrived in Paris, to settle the difference with France—That there had arrived at Basle, a new Agent from England, charged to renew the Negociations with the Republic—That a Negociation was going on between the Directory and the Spanish Minister, for restoring to Spain its territory in St. Domingo, and giving Louisiana in exchange—That Pitchegru had departed for Strawsbourg, from hence he goes to Arbois, and then to Stockholm, and that Sir Sidney Smith had arrived at Paris with two other English officers, and were conducted to the Abbaye prison.

Upon the whole, it appears, that the campaign on the Rhine was to be opened the 2d of May, no doubt something very decisive has taken place before this; as to the campaign in Italy, it scarcely commenced, e'er it was finished. Never was victory more brilliant. CAIRA!

WHEREAS the subscriber on the 13th day of June last, did give a promissory note for thirty six pounds ten shillings and eleven pence halfpenny in favour of Samuel Stoops, payable in three months after date, being the balance of a horse purchased from him, and afterwards taken in execution on a judgement by the sheriff of this county as the property of the said Samuel Stoops. I therefore forwarn all persons from taking an assignment on said note, as I am determined not to pay the same unless the horse is returned to me, or I am compelled by law.

JOHN SEE.

M'Kee's Port, July 12. 1796.

The following sweet and tender lines are from the pen of Dr. PERCY, the Bishop of Dromore. The delicate taste of this learned Divine has given a grace even to pastoral writers, which among the herd of versemen are either disgustingly trite, or grossly low.

O NANCY! wilt thou go with me,
Nor sigh to leave the flaunting town:
Can silent glens have charms for thee,
The lowly cot, and russet gown?
No longer dress'd in silken sheen,
No longer deck'd with jewels rare,
Say, canst thou quit each courtly scene,
Where thou wert fairest of the fair.

O Nancy! when thou'rt far away,
Wilt thou not cast a wish behind?
Say, canst thou face the parching ray,
Nor shrink before the wintry wind?
O can that soft and gentle mein
Extremes of hardship learn to bear,
Nor sad regret each courtly scene,
Where thou wert fairest of the fair.

O Nancy! canst thou love so true,
Thro' perils keen with me to go,
Or when thy swain mishap shall rue,
To share with him the pang of woe?
Say, should disease or pain befal,
Wilt thou assume the nurse's care,
Nor wistful those gay scenes recal
Where thou wert fairest of the fair.

And when at last thy love shall die,
Wilt thou receive his parting breath,
Wilt thou repress each struggling sigh,
And cheer with smiles the bed of death?
And wilt thou o'er his breathless clay
Strew flowers, and drop the tender tear?
Nor then regret those scenes so gay,
Where thou wert fairest of the fair.

THE YORKSHIRE PHENOMENON.

The following letter relative to this Phenomenon, has been written by Mr. TOPHAM, to a friend.

THE very singular phenomenon which took place near my house in Yorkshire, on Sunday the 10th of Dec. 1795, has excited general curiosity.

Being in London at the time it was impossible for me to know more of it than some vague accounts in Provincial and London papers, and to be certain, from private letters, that such an event had occurred. On my return here I found that for a space of nearly three weeks, thirty or forty persons each day, had come to see a stone which had fallen; and I found likewise a number of letters, from different parts of the kingdom, requesting me to give them an account of the circumstance.

The following detail, which you are welcome to make public will be, I hope, satisfactory on the subject.

The exact weight of the stone which fell, and which was weighed immediately on being dug up, was by Merlin's balance, three stone 13lb. It had buried itself in twelve inches of soil, and after that in six inches of solid chalk rock, from whence it was some little time in being extracted.—When taken up it was warm and smoked.

At the time it fell there was a labourer within nine yards, and a carpenter and a groom of mine within seventy yards.—The labourer saw it coming down, at the distance of about ten yards from the ground.

As it fell, a number of explosions were heard by the three men, at short intervals, about as loud as the report of a pistol. The stone is strongly impregnated with sulphur, and then smelt very strong. The general texture of the stone is that of grey granite, of which I know of none that may be called "natives of this country."

What renders this event more extraordinary is, that the day was a mild hazy day; a sort of weather very frequent on the Wold Hills, when there are no winds or storms; but there was not any thunder or lightning the whole day.

It fell about three o'clock in the afternoon. Its course, as far as I can collect from different accounts, was from the south west.

At Bridlington, and at different villages, sounds were heard in the air, which the inhabitants took to be the noise of guns at sea; but at two adjoining villages, the noise was so distinct of something tingular passing through the air towards my habitation, that five or six people came up to see if any thing extraordinary had happened in my house or lands.

In burying itself in the earth, it threw up a greater quantity of soil by far, than a shell would have flung up, and to a much greater extent. When the labourer had recovered from the extreme alarm into which the descent of such a stone had thrown him, his first description was, "that the clouds opened as it fell, and he thought heaven and earth were coming together."

From the various persons who have been to inspect this curiosity, and who are still daily coming from different parts, no satisfactory conjecture has yet been hazarded, from whence it came. We have no such thing as a volcano in this country. There has not been any earthquake in these parts, any eruption [illegible] for [illegible] years. From its jagged and irregular end jagged form, it cannot have come from any building; and as the day was not tempestuous, it does not seem probable that it can have been forced from any rocks the nearest of which are those of Flamborough Head, a distance of twelve miles.

The particulars of this event are now before the public: I have taken every due care to examine the accounts given by the different persons who all agree upon the subject; and from what I have seen I have no doubt of the veracity of their relation. To account for so extraordinary appearance, I leave to the research of the philosopher.

I have the honor to be, sir, &c.
EDWARD TOPHAM.

FOR SALE, BY

J. Horner or J. G. Heron,

A Quantity of Philadelphia Manufactured SOLE LEATHER, BOOT LEGS and BEN SOLES, where shoemakers and others may be supplied on reasonable terms.

Pittsburgh, June 1, 1796.

N.B. And a quantity of Harness Leather.

Holland Company Lands.

ADVANTAGEOUSLY situated upon the navigable waters of Allegheny river and French creek, affording an interesting variety of arable and meadow grounds, and capable of easy improvement and cultivation, are now offered for sale and settlement. All the advantages of soil, climate and situation are here combined in a most extraordinary manner. The lands are rich, fertile and finely watered. The air, like all the country beyond the Allegheny mountains, is mild, pure and healthy, and the rivers open a communication with all parts of the continent. No tract of country within the United States is more materially benefitted by the commercial advantages arising from the free navigation of the northern lakes and southern waters. A large proportion of the wealth and merchandize of enterprising adventurers from the eastern and Atlantic states will, from motives of interest and convenience, in a very few years pass through this delightful country to all the western world. This, added to the natural productions, will supply the inhabitants at a very reasonable price with every thing necessary for their health and happiness. To those who are determined to settle in the country, and wish to make purchases, a liberal credit will be given upon easy and advantageous terms.—To those who are desirous of holding under improving leases, generous supplies of provisions and farming utensils, or gratuitous grants of lands and privileges will be given; and good wages and beneficial offers are made to sober, honest, and industrious mechanics and labourers. A rich and thriving settlement, affording many accommodations and advantages, and consisting of above thirty families, is fixed in the centre of this country, upon the property of David Mead, esquire, where all the necessaries, and many of the conveniences for living may be procured at a reasonable price. A saw mill is already erected—a grist mill will be established in the course of this season. A great plenty of grass and hay can be easily procured with no other expence than cutting and curing upon the large and extensive meadows bordering upon French creek. All those, who are desirous of knowing the truth of these facts, or wish to become interested by purchase or settlement, may receive farther information by applying to Mr. Charles Cazenove, at New Geneva, in Fayette county; to Messrs. Denny and Beelen, at Pittsburgh; to Alexander M'Dowell, Esq. at Franklin; or at Cussewago, in Mr. Mead's settlement, about 40 miles from Lake Erie, to

R. ALDEN.

May 1st, 1796.

THE subscribers duly authorized and instructed for that purpose by the Governor of this Commonwealth, will sell at Public Sale, on the first Monday in August next, at the house of WILLIAM MORROW, in PITTSBURGH, the following TOWN and OUT LOTS, within the Town and Reserved Tract opposite Pittsburgh, which Lots had been formerly sold, but reverted to the State on account of a default in paying the purchase money:

19	226	10
20	265	10
14	234	10

One half of the purchase money to be paid at the time of sale, and the remainder within six months, when the patents will issue. The first payment will be forfeited to the state if the second is not punctually made.

The elegant and convenient situation of these Lots is too well known to make any description necessary. Further conditions will be made known at the time of sale, and attendance given by PRESLEY NEVILL.

JOHN WILKINS, jun.

Pittsburgh, May 10, 1796.

BY virtue of authority in us vested by the last Will and Testament of Col. William Butler, late of Allegheny county, deceased, we offer for Sale, a Tract of Land of the first quality, situate in Westmoreland county, on the waters of Brush creek, about two miles from Tegarden's old place, on the Hannah's town old road to Pittsburgh, there are upwards of 50 acres cleared and under cultivation. One half of the purchase money to be paid at the time of purchase, and the remainder in two equal yearly payments, with interest from the date, giving approved security. An indisputable title will be given. For terms apply to Jane Butler, in Pittsburgh, or Robert Galbraith, 12 miles out, on Forbes's old road.

JANE BUTLER, Executrix.
ROBERT GALBRAITH, Executor.

Pittsburgh, June 11, 1796.

Whereas I gave my bond for three hundred dollars, payable on the first day of October next, to Jeremiah Sergent, of Harrilton county and state of Virginia, in case he, the said Sergent, did on that day make me a good and sufficient warrantee deed for a certain tract of land lying in said county, and bounded on the Little Kenhawa, but am now fully persuaded that it is out of his power to fulfil his contract. I therefore forwarn all persons from taking an assignment on said bond as I am determined not to pay it unless compelled by law.

CHRISTIAN STEVENS.

Hampshire county, Virginia,
May 23, 1796.

All persons are cautioned against purchasing or taking an assignment on a note of hand given by me to Samuel Stoops, of M'Kee's Port, calling for one hundred and seventeen pair of shoes, dated the 16th of February 1796. I will not pay it until he complies with his contract.

HANS MORRISON.

Pittsburgh, June 16, 1796.

All persons are hereby forwarned from taking an assignment on five notes of hand that I gave to Robert M'Gee; the first three are due in April 1796, April 1797, and April 1798, they each are for ten pounds eight shillings; the other two, for seven pounds twelve shillings each, are due in 1799 and 1800, as I am determined not to pay any of them until he fulfils the contract for which said notes were given.

ADAM HILL.

Allegheny county, June 7, 1796.

WHEREAS a certain Robert [illegible] father, of Washington [illegible] verified me in the Pittsburgh [illegible] twenty ninth of October last [illegible] away from him as an apprentice [illegible] generous reward of nine pence [illegible] bending me and bringing me [illegible] no charges. As my time was [illegible] one of his business he would give [illegible] equivalent for the loss he was [illegible] tain, but know, impartial reader, [illegible] Galloway had been down at [illegible] and reported, that he had furnished [illegible] prentices with arms and ammunition [illegible] that they had been at the burning of [illegible] Nevill's house, and if he had not made [illegible] precipitate retreat he would have been [illegible] prehended. On his return home [illegible] me down to bring up some property he [illegible] neglected in his hurry, and I had got to [illegible] Getty's town, in York county, [illegible] was apprehended, on his report, and [illegible] to Chambersburgh, and there committed [illegible] jail, after some time I was admitted [illegible] bail, and when an examination took place [illegible] I was honorably acquitted, and [illegible] loway proved to be a liar. After my [illegible] turn home he gave me my indentures [illegible] employed me as a journeyman for [illegible] months, at five pounds per month, to superintend his business, during which time he went to Kentucky; when he came back [illegible] being vexed at paying so much money [illegible] reported that I had stolen some of his money in the month of November, at which time, I have made it appear before [illegible] Boyd, Esq. that I was not on the west side of the Allegheny mountain. He then owed me for the clothes he was to give me during my apprenticeship, I also, cast him in an action—he then swore before Squire Boyd the second time, that I had stole his money, and that it was done in December; I also proved that false—I threatened to prosecute him, he then produced a deposition of a minor boy, taken before a magistrate in Washington county. Squire Boyd [illegible] asked him how he knew I had stole the money, he replied, that the boy had told him so, and took up the boy's deposition and swore to the contents of it. Can it is to think that a man would swear to boy's deposition without a certainty [illegible] then apprehending his danger, and being warned by some of his friends that James Paul, Esq. sheriff of Fayette county was waiting to take him, he took a quick departure, giving Ohio Bail to all his creditors, and like all evil disposed persons in hasty strides flying from justice for fear being detected in their villainy.
